the nerve fluid may be termed, is an espezially attractive department of science, as it axerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, ctc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cutthelong nerve descending from the base of the brain and terminating in the bowels is the pneumogastric, while the numerous litthe branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.
Physicians generally

gans receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.

Physicians generally fail to recognize, the importance of this fact, but treat the organitself instead of the cause of the trouble
The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., Li. B., nas given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts.

Dr. Miles Restorativo Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in curing these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from oplates or dangerous drugs. It is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical

With the unreasonable petulance of mankind I rang the bell and gave a curt intimation that I was ready. Then I picked up a magazine from the table and attemped to while away the time with it, while my companion munched silently at his toast. One of the articles had a pencil mark at the heading, and I naturally began to run my eye through it.

Its somewhat ambitious title was "The Book of Life." and it attempted to show how much an observant man might learn by an accurate and systematic examination of all that came in his way. It struck me as being a remarkable mix ture of shrewdness and of absurdity. The reasoning was close and intense but the deductions appeared to me to be farfetched and exaggerated. The writer claimed by a momentary expression, a twitch of a muscle or a glance of an eye to fathom a man's inmost thoughts. Deceit, according to him, was an impossibility in the case of one trained to observation and analysis. His conclusions were as infallible as so many propositions of Euclid. So startling would his results appear to the uniniti ated that until they learned the processes

"What is it?" asked Sherlock Holmes. "Why, this article," I said, pointing at it with my egg spoon as I sat down to my breakfast. "I see that you have read it, since you have marked it. I don't deny that it is smartly written. It irritates me, though. It is evidently the theory of some armchair lounger who evolves all these neat little paradoxes in the seclusion of his own study. It is not practical. I should like to see him clapped down in a third class carriage or the Underground and asked to give the trades of all his fellow travelers. I would lay a thousand to one against

That trick of his of breaking in on his friends' thoughts with an apropos remark after a quarter of an hour's silence is really very showy and superficial. He had some analytical genius, no doubt, but he was by no means such a phenomenon as Poe appeared to imagine."

"Have you read Gaboriau's works?" I asked. "Does Lecoq come up to your idea of a detective?" Sherlock Holmes sniffed sardonically. "Lecoq was a miserable bungler," he said in an angry voice. "He had only one thing to recommend him, and that was his energy. That book made me positively ill. The question was how to identify an unknown prisoner. I could have done it in 24 hours. Lecoq took six Gregson, Lestrade & Co. will pocket all months or so. I was still annoyed at his bumption style of conversation. I thought it best to change the topic.

"I wonder what that fellow is looking for?" I asked, pointing to a stalwart, plainly dressed individual who was walking slowly down the other side of the street, looking anxiously at the numbers. He had a large blue envelope in his hand and was evidently the bearer of a message.

"You mean the retired sergeant of narines," said Sheriock Holmes. "Brag and bounce!" thought I to myself. "He knows that I cannot verify his gross.

The thought had hardly passed through my mind when the man whom we were watching caught sight of the number on our door and ran rapidly across the roadway. We heard a loud knock, a deep voice below and heavy steps ascending the stairs.

"For Mr. Sherlock Holmes," he said, stepping into the room and handing my friend the letter.

Here was an opportunity of taking the conceit out of him. He little thought of this when he made that random shot. "May I ask, my lad," I said blandly, what your trade may be?' "Commissionnaire, sir," he said gruff-

CHAPTER III.

I confess that I was considerably startled by this fresh proof of the practical nature of my companion's theories. My respect for his powers of analysis increased wondrously. There still remained some lurking suspicion in my mind, however, that the whole thing was a prearranged episode, intended to dazzle me, though what earthly object he could have in taking me in was past my comprehension. When I looked at him, he had finished reading the note, and his eyes had assumed the vacant, lackluster expression which showed mental ab-

"How in the world did you deduce that?" I asked.

"No, indeed." "It was easier to know it than to explain why I know it. If you were asked to prove that two and two make four. ever, and regulation side whiskers. "Quite so. I have a kind of intuition There we have the marine. He was a man with some amount of self importance and a certain air of command. You must have observed the way in which he held his head and swung his cane, a steady, respectable, middle aged man, too, on the face of him, all facts which led me to believe that he had been a sergeant. 'Wonderful!" I ejaculated. "Commonplace," said Holmes, though I thought from his expression that he was pleased at my evident surprise and admiration. "I said just now that there were no criminals. It appears that I am wrong. Look at this!" He threw me over the note which the commissionnaire had brought.

"Why," I cried as I cast my eye over it, "this is terrible!" "It does seem to be a little out of the common," he remarked calmly. "Would you mind reading it to me aloud?" This is the letter which I read to him: MY DEAR MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES-There has n a bad business during the night at 3 Lau riston Gardens, off the Brixton road. Our man on the beat saw a light there about 2 in the morning, and as the house was an empty one suspected something amiss. He found the door suspected something amiss. He found the door open and in the front room, which is bare of furniture, discovered the body of a gentleman, well dressed and having cards in his pocket bearing the name of "Enoch J. Drebber, Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A." There had been no robbery, nor is there any evidence as to how the man met his death. There are marks of blood in the room but there is no wound upon his in the room, but there is no wound upon his person. We are at a loss as to how he came into the empty house. Indeed the whole affair is a puzzler. If you can come round to the house any time before 12, you will find me there. I have left everything in statu quo until I he have left everything in statu quo until I near from you. If you are unable to come, I shall give you fuller details and would esteem it a great kindness if you would favor me with your opinion. Yours faithfully, Tonias Gracson.

"Gregson is the smartest of the Scotland Yarders," my friend remarked.
"He and Lestrade are the pick of a bad lot. They are both quick and energetic, but conventional, shockingly so. They have their knives into one another too. They are as jealous as a pair of professional beauties. There will be some fun over this case if they are both put upon the scent." I was amazed at the calm way in which he rippled on. "Surely there is not a moment to be lost," I cried. "Shall I go and order you a cab?"

"I am not sure about whether I shall go. I am the most incurably lazy devil that ever stood in shoe leather—that is, when the fit is on me, for I can be spry enough at times." "Why, it is just such a chance as you have been longing for." "My dear fellow, what does it matter to me? Supposing I unravel the whole matter, you may be sure that the credit. That comes of being an unofficial personage."

we finished our journey upon foot. No. 3 Lauriston Gardens were an ill omened and minatory look. Nothing appeared to be farther all kidney, bladder and urinary nonchalance, which, under the circumstances, seemed to me to border upon affectation, he lounged up and down the pavement and gazed vacantly at the ground, the sky, the opposite houses and the line of railings. Having finished his scrutiny, he proceeded slowly down the path, or rather down the fringe of grass which flanked the path, keeping his eyes riveted upon the ground. Twice he stopped, and once I saw him smile and heard him utter an exclamation of satisfaction. There were many marks of footsteps upon the wet, clayey soil, but since the police had been coming and going over it I was unable to see how which was hidden from me.

At the door of the house we were met by a tall, white faced, flaxen haired man, with a notebook in his hand, who rushed forward and wrung my compan ion's hand with effusion. "It is indeed kind of you to come," he said. "I have had everything left untouched. "Except that!" my friend answered pointing to the pathway. "If a herd of buffaloes had passed along, there could not be a greater mess. No doubt, how ever, you had drawn your own conclu sions, Gregson, before you permitted this.

"I have had so much to do inside the house," the detective said evasive-"My colleague, Mr. Lestrade, is here. I had relied upon him to look satisfied way. "I think we have done all that can be done," he answered. "It's a queer case, though, and I knew your taste for such things." without extra charge.

"You did not come here in a cab? asked Sherlock Holmes. "No, sir."

"Nor Lestrade?" "No, sir."

"Then let us go and look at the coom." With which inconsequent re mark he strode on into the house, followed by Gregson, whose features ex pressed his astonishment.

A short passage, bare planked and dusty, led to the kitchen and offices. Two doors opened out of it to the left and to the right. One of these had obviously been closed for many weeks The other belonged to the dining room. which was the apartment in which the mysterious affair had occurred. Holmes walked in, and I followed him with that subdued feeling at my heart which the presence of death inspires.

It was a large, square room, looking all the larger for the absence of all forniture. A vulgar, flaring paper adorned the walls, but it was blotched in places with mildew, and here and there great strips had become detached and hang down, exposing the yellow plaster beneath. Opposite the door was a showy fireplace, surmounted by a mantelpieco of imitation white marble. On one corner of this was stuck the stump of a red wax candle. The solitary window was so dirty that the light was hazy and uncertain, giving a dull gray tinge to everything, which was intensified by the thick layer of dust which coated the whole apartment.

up town public schools was exercising her class on definition of words and the writing of sentences. "Deceitful," said she, "means false," and she told one of the scholars, a towheaded boy, to write on his slate a sentence with "deceitful" in it. He scratched his cranium, looked at the ceiling and then ran his pencil over his slate. "Read what you have written." Children Cry for said the teacher. "My ma has deceitful teeth."—Life's Calendar.

Salt Rheum, Impure Blood and a Racking Cough That Baffled Physicians, Finally Cured.

[Springfield (Mass.,) Republican.] In the town of Amherst, Mass., Mr. Geo. B. Pierce and his mother are th proprietors of the Amherst Creamery Association. Mrs. Pierce has suffer tion, but they have given way to health and vigor. Hearing of this a reporter called on Mrs. Pierce, and the following experience was relatabout two years ago I slipped and hurt my knee, which made it worse. covered with running sores. My friends would say I could not live long and I thought so too. Well, I heard of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and Dr. David Kennedy's Salt Rheum Cream; I commenced u ing them, and in three weeks I walk a mile, and I am sixty-three years of age. It shows that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and Salt Rheum Cream can do more than the physicians, for they made me well after my doctor told me I was incurable. must also tell you of another prepara tion Dr. Kennedy advised me to use which did as much for me. It was Dr. David Kennedy's Cherry Balsam. have had a wretched cough for the past fifteen years, the best doctors in the state united in saying that it was recollect the first time I used Dr Kennedy's Cherry Balsam. It relieved my throat at once, and I slept all through that night, the first full night's rest I had in several years. It Collections promptly attended seemed like a miracle, I took but two bottles and was cured. Dr. David Kennedy's Cherry Bal am cure asthma, bronchitis, coughs colds, incipient consumption, whoop ing cough or croup. Taken with Favorite Remedy, it never fails. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Dr. David
